OPERATING THIS TV SET

Choice of antenna and connection

Connect the antenna to RF input terminal (Refer to the diagram below)

300-75Ω adaptor

To get best picture and sound, a correct antenna (75Ω-axial cable) and a correct terminal are needed. If a community antenna system is used, a correct cable and jack is needed to connect the antenna and the TV set. Your local community antenna dealer can help you to get the correct antenna system and needed accessories.

If a TV Ext. Antenna Input Jack is used, you should connect a 300-75Ω adaptor to the flat cable of the indoor antenna and then plug it into the RF input terminal.

If there is no community antenna system or signal is weak. A set of outdoor antenna and a signal booster is requested. If VHF antenna and flat cable are used, then 300-75Ω adaptor is needed which is connected to the flat cable and then inserted into RF input terminal. If UHF antenna is used, a 75Ω co-axial cable and antenna jack are needed to connect to the TV set.

- Note:
- (1) The outdoor antenna should be located in high position away from electrical wires or neon.
 - (2) In areas with weak signal, if an outdoor antenna cannot get ideal picture and sound, please consider to use a signal booster.
 - (3) During thundering and lighting, the outdoor antenna and power should be unplugged to ensure safety.
